Product Spotlight

"This month we are featuring a product from Safersonic. As ultrasound guided blocks gain ground, more ultra sound machines are found in the operating theatre. This brings with it new concerns over sterility that can be at odds with conductive gels and delicate transducers. This is where Safersonic has entered with a simple, but very effective solution: the sterile transducer cover and NO need for the messy gel on the inside of the cover.

You can get more information from their website by clicking here including instructions for use and distributor sources. When we live in a time of ever more technologically complicated problems, it's refreshing to see a simple solution that strikes right at the heart of the problem it's meant to solve.
